5:40 Emergency Management and Communications in the City in a Significant Industrial Event: *Overview and EOC Tour

- In a significant industrial event, like a fire, explosion, or release requiring a shelter in place, both the plant and the city play vital roles. We will learn how the city handles notifications from plants and how the city would communicate with those who live or work in Pasadena as well as how they would interact with nearby cities and the county.
  - Presentation and tour led by Azell Carter, Pasadena Emergency Management Coordinator, with virtual support from Deputy EMC Andrew Aleman.
  - The city's Emergency Management Department is responsible for protecting the citizens of Pasadena before, during, and after any and all disasters. These disasters can include man-made events such as chemical spills and transportation accidents, or natural events such as severe storms, floods, and hurricanes.
